FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, Sept. 18, 1870.

The waters of the Senatorial puddle have been stirred to-day. The sloshing of the whales in it, and the wiggling of the minnows who are playing whale, are gloriously grand or delightfully antic, according to the respective sizes of the performers. As a rule, however, the little fry are raising more mud than the whales, by reason of the multitude of them. The census of the whale family could be taken in less time than is required to call the roll in the Senate; but I should'nt want to undertake the other branch of the Democratic piscatorium unless I were sure of having a faithful executor of my last will and testament, who would continue the work after my allotted three score and ten years should be run out. During the day there has been an immense gathering in, too, of the various sorts of Democratic helps and hindrances in this Senatorial struggle. They have come from Portland and all along the banks of the Wallamet; from Long Tom and Soap Creek, yea, from the Forks of the Land of Joab; from Eugene; from Dalles and Umatilla, and from the uttermost parts of the State. The numbers of them are like the sands upon the sea shore. Among the arrivals from Portland, I see Ben. Stark, who, as I suppose, was "sent for;" Judges Strong and Page, and a host of others, literally "too numerous to mention," Van [illegible] etceteras. Never in the history of Oregon has there been such a congregation of the doctors, midwives, nurses (dry) and anxious friends, to assist or to hinder or to make a fuss, in a general way, at the bringing forth of the "coming man." It is ludicrous, too, to witness the anxiety displayed by each one of them. From appearances, it could not be supposed that there is an individual doctor, midwife, or nurse among them who has anything at stake on the Senatorial issue less than a first-class embassy, or, at least, an appointment as watchman at the Penitentiary.

THE WHAT IS IT?

Thus far, the coming man is the great what is it. Nobody can exactly make him out and description is out of the question. Now he is a Kelly and then a Fay or a Stout, or again neither and nobody. At one time, the current report goes that Kelly has been agreed upon by thirty-eight votes in caucus, and that his nomination is a foregone conclusion when the caucus shall meet for a formal vote. At another, gossip says Fay has positively votes enough, and more too, to hold the balance of power, and that he will hold till the last trump shall sound. There have been more editions of the very latest Senatorial sensation than could be numbered on the thumbs and fingers of all the candidates—no three figures would answer the purpose. The great Democratic party of Oregon, however, will go into caucus this evening, when it may reasonably be expected that the great "what is it" will be defined. At all events, the expectant public will have just grounds for complaint if something be not done to allay their curiosity and anxiety. Superadded to all this, Jo Teal has gone to an immense expense, as showmen would say, to get up the caucus, and it would be an outrage upon his munificence, if the caucus should fail, through indifference or inattention or diverse ambitions of men, to do something practical.

A VOICE FROM THE SOUTH.

Jesse Applegate, the "Sage of Yoncalla," arrived from the South this morning, and I understand he brings with him the petitions of the people of Southern Oregon asking and instructing their Representatives in the Legislature to vote for no man for Senator who is not a firm and earnest friend of the railroad for Southern Oregon. He represents that the public mind in that section of the State is greatly excited on this question, and that if any legislator votes for a man who is not favorable to the Rogue river and Klamath branch as against the Eugene-Humboldt branch, he will find Southern Oregon not a good place to go to, after this job is done.

THE BENTON COUNTY CONTEST.

The case of contest for the Benton county seats was up in the House this morning. The majority report by the two Democratic committeemen was in favor of admitting the contestants, while the minority report by Mr. Hare declared the sitting members entitled to hold. Before any vital question had been taken on the report, Mr. Lockhart, of Coos and Curry, moved to refer both reports back to the committee, with instructions to report to the House all the papers and evidence in the case. Over this motion there was a long struggle, the Kelly Democrats appearing very anxious to avoid the presentation of the evidence before the House. Whiteaker moved to lay on the table the motion to refer, and he, Helm, Dorris, Grant, Amis and others made speeches against Lockhart's motion. Points of order were several times taken as to whether the sitting members should vote on these preliminary questions. The Speaker, much to the disgust of Whiteaker, Helm & Co., decided constantly that as the sitting members had no "direct interest" in the result of the questions pending they should be entitled to vote. The motion to table Lockhart's motion was lost by a vote of 22 to 24, one Democrat, Ostrander, being absent. After dinner the motion to refer was carried by a vote of 26 to 21, several Democrats voting "aye." This was looked upon as a sort of test question on the chances of Kelly. If the contestants were admitted they would add to Kelly's strength; hence the anxiety of the Kelly men to have the matter go at once to a final vote. It is now, however, useless to speculate on these matters, because the caucus of this evening will determine in what exact degree the above votes were tests. I do not think it can be relied upon that the Democratic votes in favor of re-committing the contest will stand in opposition to Kelly. King Caucus may compel them to submission. As matters now stand if the Democratic members all submit to the unquestionable majority of the caucus Kelly will be chosen.

WHITEAKER AS A INSTRUCTOR.

On various occasions, when points of order or questions of parliamentary law have been raised in the House, the Ex-Governor has very kindly volunteered to instruct the Speaker as to what should be his ruling. I think that on one or two occasions, at first, the Speaker was really gratified for the information thus tendered him; but the late surface indications are that Ben is getting to look upon the officiousness of the gentleman from Lane with disfavor, as looking too much as though Whiteaker were trying to run Hayden; in short, I am inclined to believe that Ben's decisions on one or two late cases, have been quite decidedly intended to convey a gentle hint to the gentleman from Lane that he (Ben) did not require a regular tutor, that he felt himself competent to be the Speaker in fact as well as in name. It appears as if Mr. Whiteaker's hitherto unquestioned office of mentor is about to be abolished by the gentleman from Polk.

VARIOUS AND SUNDRY MATTERS.

Mr. Whiteaker submitted a resolution looking to an inquiry as to whether the office of Adjutant General may not be abolished.

President Fay this morning announced that Hon. E. L. Applegate would address the Congressional Temperance Society to-morrow evening, and that Senator Hendershott would be expected to make a few remarks. In reply to a query by a Senator as to whether Hendershott was to appear as a witness, Mr. Fay suggested that probably he might appear as a "frightful example." Senator Hendershott, however, disclaimed any intention of making a temperance speech. Mr. Fay's announcement created a good deal of laughter.

The railroad is rapidly approaching Salem. Last evening the end of the track was only about a mile and a half below the Fair Ground. Wed[illegible] afternoon it is expected to land passengers at the Fair Ground.

The Gas Company have succeeded in getting their works into very good condition, and they are now furnishing a fair quality of gas. I hear complaints, however, that the meters run at a fearfully rapid rate, marking up the hundred feet like a lightning calculator.

A London paper declares that England could not get 40,000 troops ready for foreign service in a month.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO SEPT. 19.

Napoleon Eulogizes German Soldiers.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—The following is official: While Napoleon was at Namur he eulogized the discipline and courage of Prussian soldiers, and said nothing could keep them out of Paris.

Favre Gone to Prussian Headquarters.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Favre has gone to Prussian headquarters under safe conduct from Bismarck.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Prussian scouts have arrived near the walls of Paris. The city is quiet.

Prussia explains that she will be fully prepared to treat for peace when France presents a government stable enough to enforce the treaty.

Three thousand Prussian uniforms were found in three houses.

On a grand review some regiments of Provincial Gardes Mobile refused to cry "Vive la Republique!"

Military News.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Dispatches to-day destroy all prospects of Bazaine's escape. Only a handful of his men have escaped thus far.

The siege of Toul is vigorously pressed. The place cannot hold out long.

The Prussians last night surrounded a battalion of Parisian Tierreurs at Moury Forest.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—It is reported that four hundred Uhlans occupied Versailles yesterday.

Postal service is suspended. Service messengers are to be organized.

TOURS, Sept. 19.—Thiers has arrived from London.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The northern army is marching on St. Denis. Foreigners are in great danger of being treated as spies. Many Americans have been roughly handled from their imprudence.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The Russian Ambassador left to-day for St. Petersburg.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—There is continuous fighting to-day around Paris.

Marshal Vaillant narrowly escaped being hung by a mob while visiting the fortifications. The Reds are struggling hard for the ascendancy.

Ambassadors Remain at Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The Swiss, American and Belgian Ambassadors decline to quit Paris.

General News from Paris.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Jules Favre has gone to the Prussian headquarters. Fears are entertained that he will not be received, but he requested of Bismarck safe conduct at least, and was answered favorably. He set out immediately for Meux, the present headquarters of the King.

The village of Bazeilles, near Sedan, was destroyed by the Prussians because some wounded fugitives from the German army were massacred in the streets.

The Pall Mall Gazette says, in its correspondence from Reims, that Bismarck is anxious about the policy to be pursued by the United States Government, now that France has declared a Republic. It is said that Prussia craves American sympathy, but cannot treat with a Republic.

The people of Paris generally are dissatisfied with the government, which has failed to adopt revolutionary measures. A manifesto voted in twenty arrondissements of Paris was presented to-day to the provisional government, and will be posted to-morrow on the walls. The manifesto requires immediately an Envoy General and Commissioners in the provinces. It is doubtful if the government will yield.

A correspondent of the Times writes from Paris on the 18th inst. that Gen. Vinoy led 3,000 troops of the line last night to Vincennes to dispute the passage of the Marne. The advance of the enemy yesterday was not great. Their troops are massed near the Seine ready to cross at any moment. A corps there is taking the course indicated in a late letter, crossing the Seine at Villeneuve and St. Georges. They will pass in the vicinity of Longjumeau to the rear of Versailles. Established there, they will push forward by the wood of Meudon to plant a battery on the heights of Clamart, and if the city is bombarded, will then fire upon Vaugirard. From this point they can greatly damage the city by Boulevards, Deuper and Montmartre. The northern army is marching on St. Denis.

Bismarck's Demands.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—M. Mallet, Second Secretary of the British Embassy, who finally succeeded in getting to the Prussian headquarters, returned Friday, bringing an answer from Bismarck to Lord Lyons. Malet's talk with Bismarck was plain and to the point. He asked for an ultimatum. Bismarck says he must have Metz and Strasbourg, and will starve, bombard or burn Paris into surrender. The written answer to Lyons was confidential, but Lyons intimates that he thinks Bismarck means to have Paris in his hands before concluding his demands.

Political Movements in Germany.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Movements in Bavaria and Wurtemburg in favor of forming the United States of Germany, under the constitution of North Germany properly modified, are successfully progressing.

Steamers to Run Again.

BREMEN, Sept. 19.—The North German Lloyd's line of steamers commence running regularly again between Bremen and the U. S. ports on the 1st of October.

EDUCATIONAL WORK—THE DISTRICT SCHOOL.

FOREST GROVE, Sept. 17, 1870.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

A feature of the educational work here is our district school. Although having no organized connection with our Institute, it has nevertheless relations; they are pleasant, profitable, and they mutually effect each other. The district school, while prosperous itself, will actually increase the attendance at the Academy by increasing the number of pupils in the place; and the excellence of our Academic department increases the public demand for excellence in the district school. Mr. Worthington, an excellent teacher, and a gentleman, let me say, of attainments much above the usual demands for his position, fully meets the expectations of the public.

We hope the day is coming in Oregon, as it has come elsewhere, when our public schools will be taught by men of high culture and morality. This district is awake upon the subject. We intend that this public school shall be, as it is, a good school—as good as the best. Academies and private schools of that grade are merely make-shifts until the people thoroughly understand the business of making good public schools.

Our boarding house is progressing rapidly, is about ready for the plastering, and will be ready for use by the 1st of November. From present appearances it is likely to be well patronized even this winter, beyond our expectations. With board and nice furnished rooms at $3 50, and such instruction as Miss Wing and Professors Anderson, Marsh, Collier and Lyman can give, and with good musical instruction in the house, we may reasonably expect a house-full. The boarding house is near the College ground, and will be connected with it by a good walk. S. H. M.

A New York journal observes that in the great battles about Sedan, the French seem to have been crushed almost mechanically by the mere weight of their enemy. The failure of the Germans to force a point in the French line shows how well the French fought; but the irresistible movement of the German force along the whole length of the line, which rendered it impossible for the French commander to reinforce any particular part of his line, while it was sure to develop all the weak points in the French position, was the obvious way to give the Germans the full advantage of their superiority in numbers. It was the act of a commander confident of vast numerical superiority; but the loss must have been very great so long as the French artillerists kept heart and head.

PACIFIC COAST DISPATCHES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—The railroad agents excursion party are having a good time. They have accepted numerous invitations, including the Agricultural Park, Woodward's Gardens, Lundberg's Wine Cellar, California Theater and other places of amusement and instruction. They leave for home on the 23d.

The San Francisco markets are bare of fish. The Italian fishermen who have been accustomed to load anywhere along the front, being refused free use of the wharves any more, have struck. Provisions will be made them by the Harbor Commissioners in about a week.

Martin Noon was to-day sentenced to ten years in the State prison for killing Dennis McGrath.

A number of changes being made in railroad agencies here within a few days, more will be made before the Agents' excursion party ceases. Sam. A. Lewis has the Chicago, Burlington and Missouri railroad office, and takes charge of the Michigan Central and Great Western railroad agency in San Francisco.

It has transpired that the British war steamer Chanticleer, which left here August 27th, carried over a million dollars treasure, mostly silver bars, which were not manifested at the Custom House. The treasure was carried to Panama at a mere fraction of freight charged by regular steamers.

Col. Chas. W. Crocker, for the past ten years connected with the press of California, and for the past eight years local editor of the Call, leaves for the East Wednesday.

The French have collected over $25,000 for the sanitary fund already, and have monthly subscriptions to the amount of $1,500.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—It is feared that Mr. Wm. M. Boyd, proprietor of the California Yeast Factory, who was fearfully chopped by a Chinaman with a hatchet yesterday, is fatally injured. The Chinaman had been for years in his employ, but recently twenty dollars was stolen from the premises, and although Boyd had some suspicion of the Chinaman, he did not discharge him, having always found him trustworthy. It is supposed that the difficulty grew out of this theft.

The Thomas Mooney mystery is being cleared up. He has been heard from in Canada, and the Directors propose to rescue him from British oppression, of which he has always had so much to say, by means of a requisition under the extradition treaty.

At the request of Hon. Eugene Casserly no reception was given him on his arrival last night, but he will be serenaded to-night.

Lewis C. and George C. Brotherton were both found guilty of forgery of the Treadwell checks last night and remanded for sentence.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 19.—A meeting of Directors of the Northern District Fair and of the citizens was held this afternoon to investigate its affairs and take the necessary measures to free it from debt. Committees were appointed to investigate its affairs and to collect unpaid subscriptions and report at a meeting to be held next Monday evening.

James Faree, a French boy 18 years of age, while sick and delirious last night, jumped from the third story window of the Western House, receiving injuries which proved fatal this morning. He is said to have belonged to LaPorte.

STOCKTON, Sept. 19.—To-day, on complaint, Sheriff Harris, of Santa Clara county, was brought into court on a charge of kidnapping one Fagan. Accused waived an examination and was placed under $1,000 bonds to answer before the Grand Jury.

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 19.—An action to quiet the title to the peninsula or island of San Diego has been instituted in the District Court by the President and Trustees in this city. The defendants are Messrs. Peachy, Aspinwall & Billings, of San Francisco, who claim property by virtue of a Spanish grant. The city claims that it is part of the city lands.

NEVADA.

VIRGINIA, Sept. 19.—The funeral of William L. Williams, accidentally killed Friday, was the largest ever seen in this city.

Ira S. Parks yesterday had his horse and buggy thrown over an embankment at American flat and was considerably injured.

HAMILTON, Nev., Sept. 19.—The body of a man unknown was found this afternoon on Treasure Hill in the bottom of a shaft 75 feet deep. A Coroner's inquest will be held to-morrow.

MONTANA.

HELENA, Mon., Sept. 19.—Jas. H. Hardie arrived under orders from the War Department to investigate and report upon Montana Indian claims.

It is reported that Mr. Burns, of Missoula, was murdered by Flat Head Indians a few days ago.

Three thousand buffalo robes have arrived from Fort Benton en route to the Eastern States.

A paper entitled the Missoula Pioneer has been established at Missoula City, Montana.

COLORADO.

EVANS, Col., Sept. 18.—Wm. H. Earney was caught in the act of committing rape upon the person of a little girl about six years old, daughter of Judge Hughes of this town. While being conveyed to jail he was forcibly taken from the officers by a crowd of citizens, tarred and feathered and driven out of town.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT [illegible] 1870

A Legislature Sold to a Monopoly

[illegible] witness very [illegible] course of [illegible] Legislature of Oregon [illegible] honest man can begin to do the subject justice.

Look at it. Last June Senator Williams was denounced and vilified in the most malignant and shameful manner by the [illegible] Democratic party for his course in regard to the south [illegible] branch bill. The people were urged to defeat him [illegible] of one [illegible] ther. A contest of unparalleled bitterness resulting from this very question ensued. In places where the subject was understood Senator Williams triumphed. But elsewhere his enemies succeeded in defeating him. And now their Legislature by an almost unanimous vote instructs him to support the very measure which their party so fiercely assailed him for bringing forward. Could the impudence of injustice exceed this? More than that, they have elected a Senator specifically on a pledge to support a measure which, when Senator Williams brought it forward, they denounced as infamous, corrupt and ruinous to the State, and the man whom they have [illegible] Senator [illegible] these denunciations.

But little more than three months ago it will be remembered the Democratic party through all its organs and in all its pieces declared that Williams' amendment was conceived and introduced in the interest of a baneful monopoly that was preparing to throttle and crush the State. The Senator himself was characterized as a man "sold and enslaved to Holladay" and "intent more on doing the bidding of his master than on serving the State." Who has forgotten the fierce diatribes on this subject that loaded the air before the election? The measure was never alluded to in softer language than as "an infamous scheme of Holladay and Williams to control the State in the interest of a blighting monopoly." Said the Herald:

> The testimony that Williams has deliberately sold out the railroad interests of this State, and especially the future of this city and the west side counties, is piling up mountains high. And it should arouse every citizen, every tax payer, every property holder, to go to work at once and in earnest to defeat the evil schemes of Holladay and Williams.

And again:

> Look at the policy of the Holladayites. They aim to secure for their master full control of the whole State. Nothing but his absolute supremacy over our railroad interest will content them. This is fully exhibited in Williams' amendment to the Humboldt railroad bill.

Still further:

> On the other side are those who are already openly in league with Holladay the chief capitalist of Oregon. They are pledged to elect one of his most pliant tools to the Senate, and none of them dare deny it.

We pass by what was said about the advantage and desirability of "competing lines," which, it was declared, the proposition of Williams would make forever impossible. We cannot defile our columns with the more indecent of these calumnies against the motives and action of the Senator. All persons here well remember that for many days before the election nothing was heard but these accusations against Senator Williams. Democrats abandoned utterly their party platform and made the fight on this single question.

And now in view of what the Democratic press said on this subject last June and of the present unanimous action of its Legislature in the premises, will the Herald tell us who it is that has sold out to the monopolist? Who is it that has fallen in with the "evil scheme" whose turpitude was great enough to damn forever any one who would accept it or apologize for it? If Senator Williams "sold out the railroad interests of the State" by proposing this measure, what are we to say of the Democratic Legislature which has not only instructed him to continue his efforts in that behalf, but has elected a Senator on a special pledge to favor the same "evil scheme?" It is now in order to hear from the Herald on this question.

Col Kelly Eats the Leek

Following is the resolution to which Col Kelly was compelled to subscribe before he could be elected Senator. The resolution was exacted at the instance of the Southern Oregon members. In view of the position which he and his party have occupied on this question the requirement is a most humiliating one:

> Resolved That in view of the importance of railroad communication throughout this State, and the vital interest which Southern Oregon has in securing such communication by way of the Rogue River and Umpqua valleys, we the Democratic Senators and Representatives in caucus assembled, declare as follows: That we will not support for United States Senator any candidate who will not unconditionally pledge himself in writing: First. To use all his ability and influence to obtain from Congress all necessary aid and promote by all means in his power the speedy construction and completion of the Oregon and California Railroad through the valleys of the Umpqua and Rogue River as contemplated by the act of Congress of July 25th 1866. Second, That he will strenuously resist all Congressional aid to the Oregon Branch of the Pacific Railroad, known as the Pengra route, until the said Oregon and California Railroad is completed, or its completion placed beyond all question. Third, That all possible efforts will be used to secure a line of road connection with the Oregon and California Railroad in Rogue River valley from the North Bend of Humboldt River, Nevada, as contemplated by what is known as the Williams amendment to the Oregon Branch Pacific Railroad bill; that this resolution and the pledges made, if any, be made public.
> I endorse the above resolution.

> (Signed) JAMES K KELLY

The annual election in the State of Maine took place on the 12th inst. A dispatch from Augusta to the New York Tribune of the 13th says: "We have elected our Governor by the same majority as last year. We carried all five of the Congressional districts, the closest one by 1,400 majority. We also have an overwhelming majority in both branches of the Legislature and elected county officers in every county except two. This result has been achieved without effort and without any canvass of the State." We notice that the Herald yesterday morning in figuring up expected Democratic gains in the next Congress counted on one member from Maine. It may begin now to revise its table. During the next few weeks as the returns of the fall elections come in it will have a good deal of employment of this kind.

For years the Democratic party of Oregon have been [illegible] the Republican party for being in league with the monopolist. The play is now ended by the election of a Democratic Senator who is pledged in writing to support the same monopolist's most important interests and measures. This looks more like a sell to Holladay than anything ever seen [illegible] any Democrat talk of Holladay's [illegible]

When will Peace be Made?

A [illegible] from Paris [illegible] that [illegible] she will be prepared to treat for peace when France presents a government stable enough to enforce a treaty. This is just and fair enough. But there is grave reason to doubt whether the present Government in France [illegible]. It is meeting with bitter opposition [illegible]. The Imperialist [illegible] fighting [illegible] self appointed [illegible] seems to have little hold on the people. A treaty that it would make now might be repudiated after the withdrawal of the German armies, on the ground that the Government making it did not represent France and had no right to conclude any treaty to bind the French people. Such being the apparent state of affairs the Germans are only exercising common prudence in hesitating to treat. It is stated however that Jules Favre has gone out to meet Bismarck, who will hear what he has to propose and what assurances he can give that a treaty made by the new Government will be accepted as binding. The King of Prussia will probably [illegible] to refuse to treat with a Republic simply because it is a Republic. That would be to throw away a moral advantage which he has had all along. Doubtless he would prefer the restoration of Napoleon, or the reestablishment of a monarchy under the heir of the House of Orleans, for a Republic in France [illegible] would be a menace [illegible] in Germany. But he cannot afford to [illegible] into a struggle between republicanism and monarchism in Europe. That would be [illegible] to set Germany on fire as well as France. In the case of Germany however there is this difference: it is the genuine republican feeling and principle that prevail there, not the license and impatience of salutary restraint that so often obtain the ascendant in France, bringing anarchy and chaos instead of true reforms and a well regulated liberty. Germany is entitled to dictate the peace. She will undoubtedly claim indemnity and security, and France must accede to these demands. These objects attained, the triumph of Germany will be vastly more valuable and secure if she exhibits magnanimity and refuses to despoil France, than if she makes hard terms, and, simply because she has the power, cuts France out of her territory, takes away her fleet, exacts the payment of excessive sums of money and imposes on her a Government she does not want. The injustice of French exactions after the battle of Jena in the end injured France far more than Prussia. The utter humiliation of Prussia on that occasion and the hard terms which France imposed awakened a spirit of resistance in Germany that finally triumphed over the conqueror. Germany now cannot afford to and surely will not repeat the blunder France made then. It may therefore be expected that she will treat with France as soon as she can be assured that the treaty which may be made will be accepted in good faith and enforced by the French Government.

Belmont, Bloated Bondholder

It is the boast of Democratic journals that their party is the party of the people, the enemy of the bloated bondholders, the foe of a monied aristocracy, the champion of the people against upstart wealth and a corrupt money power that threatens to overturn free institutions. These are the professions of the Democratic party. Now look at its practice. August Belmont is the head of the organization. And Belmont—we quote from a contemporary paper,—"is the embodiment of all that is aristocratic in American social life—a banker, bondholder and the great agent of bondholders at home and abroad. He lives in a palace, has elegant country seats, carriages, fast horses, wines, liveried flunkies and all the thousand luxuries that overshadowing wealth can command, or personal vanity and ostentation require, and to make the catalogue complete he is the recognized head of the Democratic party!" What a commentary on Democratic professions of love for the poor. What a stinging evidence of hypocrisy to put the most aristocratic character in all America at the head of an organization which hourly preaches the exact reverse of what it practices. And with what a mean [illegible] laugh must this man regard all the fierce harangues of the party organs against the oppressions of wealth and capital. He and his set make the platforms, dole out the planks to suit themselves and dictate the candidates. When a little rebellion is threatened against their rule they quiet it simply by coming down with a few tens of thousands and everything is lovely again. Repeated efforts have been made to dislodge Belmont from his position at the head of the party but his money always saves him. He buys up Democratic Conventions as if the members were so many glass-eyed Cayuse horses, names such candidates for President as Seymour and McClellan and will name Chase or Hoffman for the next race. And of such is the organization that denounces the Republican party as the instrument of monopolies, proclaims itself the champion of popular rights against the oppressions of wealth and objects to the undue influence of capital in political affairs!

Mr Pendleton will not be a candidate for Congress. He authorizes the announcement that if such a sacrifice is intended he will instantly authoritatively withdraw his name. He suspects that excess of party love would set his name before the people for Congress and then let him drop flat on his back. It wouldn't do for a man who has the Presidency in view, for Pendleton has never got over the illusion that he is a candidate. He still puts faith in it and he acts on that belief. [illegible] not un[illegible] Belmont and the moneyed [illegible] that control the Democratic party will see to it that Pendleton does not receive the nomination for President.

Those who have regarded [illegible] men will see nothing [illegible] tion of Mr Williams [illegible] and using his influence and probably his money to secure the election of Col Kelly as Senator on a pledge that he (Kelly) will support and use all means in his power to secure the passage of the Humboldt branch railroad bill in such a shape as will cause that road to come into Rogue river valley. Those who remember how Mr Ladd denounced and abused Senator Williams for introducing the measure which Col Kelly is now pledged to, with Mr Ladd's backing, to support will have a new view of what constitutes disinterested and honorable action.

The sole platform of the Democracy now is Williams Amendment. We expect them to go into the next fight on this single basis. Meantime how about the State's being sold to a monopoly?

Distinguished Arrivals

Our citizens [illegible] public [illegible] through [illegible] America. [illegible] necessary in speaking of General Sherman to [illegible]. His deeds are [illegible] every citizen of the Republic [illegible] and of the [illegible]. Accompanying Gen [illegible] Major General [illegible]. These are visitors whom Oregon [illegible] receive and our people will be gratified [illegible] that their stay will be prolonged [illegible] days among [illegible].

Senator [illegible] honored with zeal and fidelity for the State and will receive a generous welcome.

The work of taking the census is [illegible] completed. Thirty millions of [illegible] already been reported at Washington. The total estimate of forty millions will probably be exceeded and the exhibit will show [illegible] wealth and general prosperity unknown in any other land. It is directly stated that more farms have been put under cultivation during the past ten years than in any previous decade and other improvements are correspondingly great. The [illegible] that the census develops [illegible] every hour by the Democratic press that the country is continually growing poorer and is rapidly approaching bankruptcy and ruin.

Col Kelly's [illegible] scheme of Holladay? A Senator pledged to favor what Mr Holladay wants and to oppose the projects of Mr Holladay's rivals is elected. The article [illegible] signed, sealed and delivered. Mr Holladay never had a pledge of any description from Senator Williams, but Senator Kelly takes his seat sworn to support and defend what Mr Holladay wants and to fight Mr Holladay's enemies, and the paper bearing the promise to do this is published to all the world. That will do for the anti monopoly Democracy.

Can France Continue the Struggle

[From the New York Tribune Sept 5]

The French Ministers in a proclamation which only half reveals the disasters of McMahon—which insultingly continues the deceptions by which the Paris people have been betrayed—announced yesterday that the struggle is to be continued and that the victory at Sedan will not be accepted as decisive. The Minister of War, Count Palikao, communicated this resolve of the Ministry in most positive terms to the Corps Legislatif on Saturday, while Jules Favre declared the unanimity of the country for defense until death. The Chamber evidently excited beyond control by the grave announcement of the Minister wildly applauded the absurd declaration. France may indeed blindly continue the conflict but it will be the struggle of madness, certain of disastrous result. No reports of the effect of the proclamation on the Paris populace have been permitted to reach us, but it is safe to assume that the resolve of the Ministry to continue the struggle has been influenced largely by the excitement which must naturally have prevailed in Paris and throughout France on Saturday and Sunday when the truth so long concealed was divulged. The sober second thought of the Ministry and the people will reveal the hopelessness of the French cause, and occasion and circumstance will be found to warrant the conclusion of peace on the best terms.

France powerful as she still is, patriotic and enthusiastic as her people continue, cannot hope in her disorganized condition to win a battle or to raise the seige of her capital which must follow if peace does not. Nearly all the important fortresses of the Meuse, Moselle and Rhine yet hold out. Bazaine at Metz has not surrendered the seventy or eighty thousand men whom it is declared by the Paris authorities he still directs. Count Palikao now announces that a large army lies within the defenses at Paris and that a second is forming on the Loire south of the capital. The military forces of France will be organized, it is announced with most [illegible] couraging indefiniteness, in a few days. Promise is a deception; it cannot be fulfilled. Before a few days elapse the Prussians will thrust themselves between Paris and the Loire and break up the camps before the levies can march to Paris. The besieged fortresses, it is true, detain before them large numbers of the German reserves. It is true also that two large armies numbering 150,000, perhaps 200,000 of the best German soldiers are required to watch Bazaine. But the garrisons of the fortresses and the army of Bazaine are lost to France, and it is only the two armies of new troops at Paris and on the Loire with which the French can oppose the advance of those of the two Crown Princes. Their armies Palikao has estimated at 300,000. Gen Von Moltke himself calculated that 240,000 Prussians and Saxons and Bavarians, United Germans, found a grave [illegible] victory became a fiery circle about Sedan. But these were not all the troops of the two armies named. Large columns had moved west of Mezieres and took part in the battle at Sedan, while the front of the columns marching on Paris were never withdrawn from about Troyes, Suzanne and Epernay. Hence the estimate of the French Minister below rather than above the truth. We are convinced that no fewer than [illegible],000 German troops are free to pursue any army which the French may attempt to organize. The French cannot arm, much less organize and train, a force equal in numbers to this. Years of the best military training, better than France has known since the First Empire, will be required to make of the present French levies soldiers fit to cope with the Germans. It must not be forgotten by the sanguine of final French triumph that it is the regular active army and a part of the reserves of France which have been annihilated, and that the future defense against the advancing German veterans must be made by the Garde Mobile and what remains of the old soldiers who form the reserve. The insane proposition of the French Ministry is that nothing more nor less than a quarter of a million untrained and unorganized youths shall attempt to stay the advance of 300,000 of the best trained and best armed soldiers of Europe. The result cannot be doubted.

But this unequal conflict will be yet avoided. Events which must follow [illegible] cannot but give the control of the country to [illegible] cooler heads than those who propose [illegible] the Prussians upon Paris will [illegible] diplomacy shall stay [illegible] march [illegible] will rise in its stead. Its first [illegible] should be to [illegible] peace [illegible] dictate.

Common rumor taking its inspiration perhaps from what has [illegible] high circles in Berlin has named Alsace and Lorraine as the parts of France Prussia will grasp for, Alsace to be given to Baden and Lorraine no doubt to extend the limits of Rhenish Prussia. The western boundary of the ancient kingdom of Lorraine was the Meuse river, and thus the Prussian would come into possession of the whole of the present theater of war—would have indeed simply to hold on to his conquests. [illegible] Sherman [illegible] The steamer [illegible]

[illegible]

Gen Sherman responded, thanking the multitude for the kind and generous reception which had been accorded to him and said he hoped [illegible] He said he had felt an interest in all parts of the country and on the visit after the objects of his mission had been determined he should take pleasure in seeing all that he could, leaving our farmers, mechanics, tradesmen etc to finish the building up [illegible] States to the [illegible] He said he did not take all the honors [illegible] much of it was due to the others of the army who had stood by the country in the darkest hours of the struggle for our life as a nation. A tribute was here paid to the gallant men who accompanied the speaker in his march to the sea. He then alluded to the fact that while we at his great distance from the scene of action could not have felt nor dreamed of the effects of the war as they existed on the fields of battle we did very much for the cause by our assistance in material things by our sympathies and were great in our rejoicings when victory finally lighted upon the banners of our nation. Where would we have been, he asked, what fate was there in store for us had we not been successful on the field of battle? We would have been in a worse condition than Mexico. But we are now one great nation and he trusted that all who should come after us would perpetuate the principles of our Government and not let the example be lost. Again thanking the public for their generous reception and wishing all good night, he took his seat.

The streets were densely packed and the hotel office filled with people and taken altogether it was a very general and cordial reception to a most distinguished visitor.

FIRE.—About four o'clock yesterday afternoon fire was discovered issuing from the roof of a one story and a half frame building corner of First and A streets owned by H C [illegible] and occupied by a colored family by the name of Johnson. The fire department were out promptly and saved a portion of the building. The entire loss will be not more than $[illegible]. The first water was from the nozzle of No [illegible] company's hose quickly followed by No [illegible] company's steam engine [illegible] and the engine has been drawn out of service by the Chief Engineer [illegible]

NUT BEARING TREES.—The Vallejo Chronicle [illegible] the most beautiful vistas in the State of California is formed by the long row of English walnut trees along the highway to Putah creek. The row of trees is not less than one mile in length and their beautiful green foliage is very refreshing to the eye. The trees are in bearing and give promise this fall of yielding a bushel of walnuts each. When planting shade trees why not procure the English walnut or butternut, bearing trees? They are just as ornamental and a great deal more useful.

Reception of General Sherman.—The steamer Oriflamme, Capt Metzger arrived at 9 o clock [illegible] evening bringing Gen W T Sherman and [illegible] distinguished passengers whom [illegible] had decided to receive and welcome with a [illegible]. At 8 30 the committees met at the St Charles Hotel, the military at their respective [illegible], the Twenty third Infantry and every preparation was made that could be carried [illegible] points designated and every preparation was made that could be carried [illegible] reception was made that could be carried out at so late an hour so late in the day and [illegible] steamer arrived the procession under [illegible] direction of Capt Armstrong, Marshal was [illegible] Front street, at the landing General [illegible] General Scofield and Senator Williams [illegible] carriage drawn by four horses Mayor Goldsmith, Corbett and the Committee of the [illegible] Council in another carriage followed by [illegible] containing members of the press and [illegible], preceded by the Washington Guard, [illegible] Guard Twenty third Infantry and civic [illegible] marched up to the St Charles Hotel where [illegible] Williams addressed General Sherman as [illegible]:

General Sherman I have the honor on behalf of the authorities and citizens of Portland to extend to you and the distinguished personages by whom you are accompanied a cordial and hearty welcome to this city and the State of Oregon, [illegible] under obligations to those occupying [illegible] and influential positions in the Government [illegible] come among us for a personal knowledge of our situation and circumstances is a safer [illegible] more satisfactory basis of official action than [illegible] otherwise obtained

Your presence here brings before our minds with peculiar freshness the great historic events with which your name is identified—events upon which [illegible] the life of the Republic but we [illegible] them now to remember the struggles [illegible] of those who with you fought for [illegible] and peace of the nation

[illegible] and isolated as we are—living as we [illegible] but a few years ago the distant Oregon [illegible] "I have the dash of his own waters," [illegible] cabin of camp or cabin in all this [illegible] mention has not been made of [illegible] "March to the Sea" or the music [illegible] "Marching Through Georgia" [illegible] designated you as one of the most distinguished of those whose good fortune it was to [illegible] the army of the Union to victory and we [illegible] of our fellow citizens, appreciate your [illegible] in that capacity

Thanking for this assemblage of people, I congratulate you upon your safe arrival in our State, [illegible] that health and pleasure may attend all [illegible] to the end, and that wherever [illegible] as I have no doubt you [illegible] and honors of a generous [illegible] people. I repeat Sir that we are all [illegible] and greet you in the State of Oregon.

General Sherman replied, thanking the multitude [illegible] for the kind and generous reception [illegible] had been accorded to him and said he [illegible] to be able to reciprocate in some manner [illegible] the service of the United States like [illegible] said, felt an interest in all parts of the [illegible] on this visit after the objects of his [illegible] had been determined he should take [illegible] all that he could leaving our [illegible], tradesmen etc. to finish the [illegible] and what is destined to be one of the finest [illegible] in the Union He said he did not take all [illegible] of the reception to himself, but felt that [illegible] due to the soldiers of the army [illegible] by the country in the darkest [illegible] struggle for our life as a nation A [illegible] paid to the gallant men who accompanied the speaker in his march to the sea [illegible] to the fact that while we at his [illegible] from the scene of action could not [illegible] dreamed of the effects of the war as [illegible] on the fields of battle we did very [illegible] the cause by our assistance in material [illegible] by our sympathies, and were great in our [illegible] when victory finally lighted upon [illegible] of our nation Where would we [illegible], he asked, what fate was there in [illegible] had we not been successful on [illegible] battle. Fire. About four o'clock yesterday afternoon [illegible] discovered issuing from the roof of a one [illegible] and a half frame building, corner of First [illegible] owned by H C Leonard and occupied by [illegible] family by the name of Johnson [illegible] department were out promptly and saved [illegible] portion of the building The entire loss will be [illegible] more than $500 The first water was from [illegible] No. [illegible] Company's hose quickly followed by No. 1. No. 2 company's steam engine [illegible] disabled by the bursting of two boiler tubes [illegible] the engine has been drawn out of service by [illegible] Chief Engineer for repairs

Its Beauty Takes.—The Vallejo Chronicle [illegible] remarks that one of the most beautiful [illegible] in the State of California is formed by the [illegible] of English walnut trees along the high[illegible] to Putah creek The row of trees is not [illegible] miles in length and their beautiful [illegible] very refreshing to the eye The [illegible] bearing and give promise this fall of [illegible] bushel of walnuts each When planting [illegible] trees why not procure the English [illegible] or other nut bearing trees? [illegible] March from Norma Bell
[illegible], from Grand Duchess
[illegible] Galop

Impressions. A Pittsburger gives his impressions [illegible] Oregon in a well written letter to the [illegible] date. Our impressions of Pittsburg [illegible] basis of the late census are that it [illegible] much of a city The population of [illegible] will reach a number equal to the entire [illegible] of Oregon—90 000 Allegheny county [illegible] Pittsburg is the county seat shows [illegible] of 269 000

Mount Hood.—As this famous favorite mountain of Oregon has quite recently been measured [illegible] gentlemen no less than three times [illegible] height may be said to be pretty well established: In 1868 Prof Williamson made a very [illegible] survey, ascertaining the height to be [illegible], this year Prof Collier's survey gives [illegible] and Prof Wilson at 11 400 feet

[illegible].—Many people living in the south [illegible] of the city, make a short cut by crossing [illegible] there on the trestle work of the Fourth [illegible] railroad bridge. The boards put down to [illegible] upon are very unreliable and the doctor [illegible] for the first accident would probably [illegible] to more than new planking if attended

[illegible] Duty.—We understand that Col [illegible], recently appointed Adjutant General [illegible] State of Oregon, proposes to report for [illegible] immediately, before his commission [illegible] repeal of the law creating this office [illegible] that General Dennison will procure [illegible] and have the sabres cleaned

[illegible] Salute.—The salute in honor of the arrival [illegible] Sherman will be fired on the east bank [illegible] Willamette by a detachment of artillery from [illegible] Vancouver Two brass cannon from the [illegible] brought over for that purpose by order [illegible] Department Commander

[illegible] Ferries.—The Oregon and California Railroad Company's team was engaged a part of [illegible] day, yesterday in transporting upholstered [illegible] to the East side for passenger coaches [illegible] finished at the shop of the company

[illegible] Birds.—The sweet feathered songsters [illegible] music by the whole scale in the woods about [illegible]. They meet for rehearsal at all hours but [illegible] grand matinee in the mornings

[illegible].—We feel particularly indebted to that [illegible] and well conducted company [illegible], Fargo & Co for favors received during [illegible]

[illegible] for Cork.—A barge loaded with wheat [illegible] alongside the Lucend yesterday d[illegible] on board that vessel for Cork

The Geological Surveys.—The United States Geological Surveying party which recently visited Mount Hood and the region about there was composed of the following persons: A Hague Geologist [illegible] Wilson Topographer Jos Bu[illegible] Artist [illegible] T A Smith guide and packer [illegible] Hathaway steward and three aids The outfit was made at the Dalles and the animals used were the untamed [illegible] from the Government [illegible] there which [illegible] much trouble the first day. However that could be [illegible] a very successful exploration [illegible] the party met with fair success Messrs Hague and Wilson [illegible] geology of the region [illegible] which they were [illegible] Mr [illegible] obtained a [illegible] views of landscape including [illegible] Mount Hood from a high ridge [illegible] four miles [illegible] the mountain [illegible] Mr W[illegible] gives the height of Mount Hood at 11 400 feet. Most of the district passed over by the party east of Mount Hood was pronounced [illegible] by Mr Hague. Some attention was given to botanical observations and several [illegible] plants were noticed which would be highly ornamental to flower gardens Mr Bachtel brought with him specimens of some such and seeds which have been presented to Mr S G Reed for his [illegible] garden [illegible] Montgomery street in his city. The smoke which is often seen at this distance ascending from Mount Hood was very dense the day the party were there and instead of being smoke from an internal fire it is nothing more nor less than clouds of condensed air from the deep caves at the south side of the mountain Wilson and Hague whilst on the top of Hood could plainly see the formation [illegible] hundred feet or less and the clouds of damp air as they rolled upward appeared almost as dense and real as smoke but actually are not Mr Bachtel has now been to Mount Hood by different routes. On his trip he was absent thirteen days [illegible] of which were consumed in traveling and explorations A few suggestions from [illegible] concerning the routes and time may be of use to future exploring parties He says that he should not start later than the month of August and he would go via Revenue's and the Laurel Hill route The season being so late they were met when near the summit of the mountain by blinding storms of hail snow and rain and high winds and all attempts to ascend were made with extreme difficulty The explorations by Messrs Hague and Wilson were continued in the direction of Mount Adams from the Dalles on Monday last After this they propose visiting Mount St Helen and perhaps Mount Rainier yet this season Prof [illegible] King who has been prosecuting scientific explorations on Government account in California is expected to join the party here soon Prof S F Emmons geologist and correspondent arrived on the evening of Monday last and is stopping at the St Charles Hotel

THE OREGON LEGISLATURE

Sixth Biennial Session

SENATE—Morning Session

Salem Tuesday Sept 20

[illegible] Senate was called to order at 10 A M by President Fay

[illegible]

[illegible] Mr Trevitt the report was adopted

Mr Cornelius [illegible] printing of copies of the rules for the use of the Senate

Mr Stout would prefer a Joint resolution providing for that but [illegible] both Houses as the proposition of the Senate would incur double expense That the House was [illegible] an additional 60 [illegible]

[illegible] S B No [illegible] defining the boundaries of Grant county was read a second time, and on motion of Mr Mosher referred to the Committee on Counties

S B No [illegible] to amend the law concerning roads and highways was read a second time

Mr Trevitt introduced S B No 18 to tax the stock of National Banks

[illegible] the Senate took a recess until [illegible] quarter to 12 o clock meridian

AN EPISODE

The Senate reassembled at the hour indicated

The President after calling the Senate to order [illegible] communication from the House and directed it to the President of the Senate containing an appropriation to pay B F [illegible] for an expedition against the [illegible]

The President stated that Mr Dowell's [illegible] was [illegible] on the paper and had been communicated with them

Mr Trevitt moved to refer to the Third House

Mr Mosher moved to refer to the Committee on Public Lands

Mr Trevitt inquired if the picture was also to be referred

Mr Baldwin desired [illegible] perfected by appendages on the side of the boat

The amendment prevailed and the message was referred to the Committee on Public Lands

On motion of Mr Trevitt a call of the House was ordered

All the members responded to the call except Mr Petsl[illegible]

[illegible] of Mr Thompson the further call was [illegible] with and Mr Petsl[illegible] was [illegible] to be present

Mr Stout moved that the Senate proceed to vote for a successor of George H Williams [illegible] U S Senate whose term expires [illegible] 1871

The motion prevailed and Mr Stout nominated James K Kelly

Mr Cornelius nominated George H Williams

Those voting for James K Kelly were Messrs Baldwin Brown of Baker Burch Cochran Crawford, Henderson Hollister Hoult Lewel[illegible] Patterson Stout Trevitt and Mr President 14

Those voting for George H Williams were Messrs Brown of Marion Cornelius Moores Powell Thompson Watts and Withs[illegible] —

The President declared that James K Kelly had received the majority of the votes in the Senate

SCHOOL LAW

The President introduced a bill providing for a uniform system of public instruction School Superintendents etc

Mr Cochran moved to suspend the rules and read the bill a second time by title

Mr Cornelius objected as the effect would be to dispense with the printing and the importance of the bill would require special attention

Mr Henderson would oppose suspending the rules especially at the outset of the session

Mr Cochran wished to refer the bill to the appropriate committee and favored the bill yet he would withdraw the motion to suspend the rules being friendly to the bill and regarding it as of the utmost importance.

The Senate took a recess until 2 P M

Afternoon Session

The Senate was called to order at 2 o clock P M by President Fay

The President introduced S J R No 9 to appoint joint committee to provide suitable rooms for the sessions of the Legislative Assembly which was adopted and the President appointed Hendershott Burch and Moores.

THE BENTON COUNTY CONTEST

Mr Burch moved that the Senate resolve itself into Committee of the Whole to take up the Benton county contest He stated he desired to take that course in order to refer it to a special committee

The Senate went into Committee of the Whole Senator Hendershott in the chair

Mr Burch moved that the committee arise and report the Benton county contest back to the Senate with a recommendation to refer to special committee

Mr Fay was opposed to this course as the testimony will have to be read in the Senate A committee will bring in two reports and then we must act blindly upon them. He would insist on hearing the testimony in the case

Mr Burch wishing to expedite business had made the motion to refer He thought there would perhaps be a hundred points to discuss and the time of the Senate would be taken up with the reading for three or four days depositions that might be digested in committee and a summary presented here for our decision

Mr Cochran did not think there ever was a contested election case before this referred to a Committee of the Whole He presumed the committee would give the Senate a report it could adopt This importing voters he wanted killed right here in this Senate It is better than all the law He presumed each party in Oregon had tampered with importing Let it be thoroughly investigated and put down this corruption

Mr Fay was as much opposed to illegal voting as the Senator from Lane but under our statutes imported votes were not illegal if they had been six months in the State and thirty days in the county and while he opposed an ex post facto law yet this could be prevented in the future by making importing votes a penal offense. If he had the appointing of the committee there would be two Democrats and one Republican and it was probable there would be two reports and it would be like [illegible] a case without hearing the pleadings read He would not see the propriety of presenting the testimony [illegible]

[illegible]

During the reading Mr Burch remarked that if the absent members were included with the sleeping members there was no quorum He moved that the committee rise report progress and ask leave to sit again which was done and the request was granted by the Senate

STEAMS AT CANAL

Mr Burch introduced S B No 12 to amend an act passed in 1868 to construct a steamboat canal and locks at Oregon City on the west side of the Willamette river It appropriates $200 000 payable in installments and derived from the sale of public lands belonging to the State

The Bloody Code.

It is but a few days since Southern chivalry was exhibited in the occurrence of a fatal duel between Edward F. Hamlin, a rising lawyer, and Ed. I. Freeman, a business man, both of the city of Memphis, and both promising young men. There was a difficulty between them about a woman, which resulted in Freeman's sending a note to Hamlin, denouncing him as a coward, a poltroon, and a base scoundrel. In obedience to the bloody code of the South, Hamlin could not do otherwise than challenge Freeman. They met upon the fatal field at Shanghai, Miss., and Freeman's shot did its work satisfactorily to the requirements of the bloody code—that is, it killed young Hamlin. As it is one of the most unjustifiable murders that has ever been committed under the bloody code, and was attended with such circumstances as rarely surround a murdering scene, we quote the account as it was recorded by the reporter of the Memphis Avalanche, who was present at the death.

The first shot was Mr. Freeman's; Mr. Hamlin's followed immediately. The latter felt his wound ere he discharged his pistol. After discharging it he exclaimed, pressing his hand to his side, "I am hit;" and then looking toward his adversary: "Freeman, I never said aught against you or injured you in all my life."

After supporting him awhile the doctors laid him gently on his back and proceeded to examine his wound. Dr. Erskine held his pulse. After a brief examination, Dr. Saunders remarked.

"Ed. you are badly hurt."

Said Mr. Hamlin, "Is it a killing wound, Doctor?"

"It is a serious wound, Ed.," replied Dr. Saunders, "and I can give you no encouragement."

"I fired too high, didn't I Doctor?" asked the dying man.

"Are you in pain, Ed.?" asked one of the group.

"Oh, no, I am not in pain," he said, "but I feel such a strange sensation here," placing his hand on his side, the wound meanwhile, having been bandaged.

Strong men stood around: men who had dared death on many a battle-field. They wept like children.

Some hurried words to Dr. Saunders by the dying man!

"Say nothing to my poor mother," said Hamlin, "but tell my father I was born a gentleman and died a gentleman," was all that was heard.

A pause. The wounded man's eyes begin to turn glassy. He was losing consciousness. It was plain the sands of life were running out fast.

Said Mr. Scales, his second, bending over him; "dont you know me, Ed.?"

There was no response.

"He will never know you again, Scales," said Dr. Saunders, very gravely.

The little group again shed tears. It was a sad scene. The doctors were unable to do anything for the body: there was no priest or minister of God to administer consolation to an immortal soul.

After a little while there was a contortion of the body, and then an exclamation something like

"OH, MY POOR MOTHER!"

Then all was silent as the grave again. The friends and surgeons and spectators looked on with bated breath. A little brandy was administered. It failed to have any effect.

It was propose to move the dying man to the house of Mr. Joyner, near by, and a blanket was procured, into which he was lifted, but it was concluded that the change would only hasten death, and the suggestion was abandoned. In three-quarters of an hour from the time the pistol was discharged, Hamlin lay a corpse on the spot where he received the fatal bullet. It entered the right side, passed through the liver, and out through the left side."

As soon as it was found that the shot had taken fatal effect, "Freeman and friends hastened from the field to their carriage." It appears that Freeman was an excellent shot, and knew that Hamlin was not; and that, having by a challenge paved the way for killing him, he hastened from the field, leaving him in the agonies of death. The whole conduct of Freeman was that of a cool-blooded villain, who provoked a challenge, knowing his antagonist's weakness and his own skill, with the deliberate intention of killing him. Hamlin felt himself obliged to be shot at by this ruffian, because of the teachings he had received from his father. "Tell my father," said he in his dying moments, "I was born a gentleman and died a gentleman." No message of consolation to his mother, whom he knew from her nature would never approve the bloody code as exemplified in his death. But he "died a gentleman," and his father will have that to think about as the hairs grow white over the remembrance of his dead son. There is another source from which he, as a Southern gentleman, can draw consolation. It is that his son was killed by a gentlemanly shot from a gentleman.

How France has been Swindled.

[From the New York Journal of Commerce.]

It is related of the Czar Nicholas that, shortly after the Crimean war broke out, he was strolling through the ordnance yard at Sebastapol, surveying with pride the pyramids of cannon balls piled up there, when he idly chanced to strike one of them with his walking-stick. It gave a strange, dull sound. An examination revealed that it was made of wood, and the same exagerated wooden nutmeg imposture had been practiced by the contractor in supplying all the balls there stored away. Following up this clue, the Czar ascertained that jobbing and fraud pervaded all departments of the army service, and that except on paper, his empire was in no condition to contend with the allied powers. Napoleon's army and military equipments and provisions are not as deficient and delusive as those of Nicholas; but they fall far short of what he and the world expected them to be. We question, in the first place, whether the active army was anything like 400,000 strong. We have never been able to figure up more than 250,000 or 275,000 regular French troops in the advance on Prussia; and we believe that the actual enumeration of men at his command was the principal reason that induced Napoleon to stand on the defensive instead of attempting an invasion of Prussia. Somebody—or some military ring—has been deceiving the Emperor and getting rich out of the rations and supplies of a paper army. Then, too, the reserve of 400,000 men, who were supposed to be capable of taking the field at short notice, why have they not been available to reinforce the regular army more promptly? Because, we venture to say, the War Department was unable to furnish them with rifles or muskets of any description, to say nothing of Chassepots, equipments, and uniforms. More than a year ago we read the statement that France had over a million Chassepots in her arsenals; and the government factories were said to be still turning them out. But, immediately after McMahon's defeat, complaints began to be rife that France was short not only of Chassepots, but of arms of every kind. The French commissariat is worse, if possible, than any other branch of the service, if we may believe a tithe of the statements made by correspondents. McMahon's army was represented to be almost starving for some days, and that, too, in a region of easy communication with the capital. All these deficiencies and weaknesses in the French army, disclosed by the light of events, astonish those who believe that, since 1866, France has been making unremitting efforts for a war with Prussia. Either she has had no serious intent of fighting Prussia until that time, or the Emperor has been grossly duped by his favorites, who have deluded him into the belief that France was prepared "to confront every eventuality" (to quote from his speech to the bodies of State, Jan. 18, 1869,) and have profited by his credulity to amass fortunes.

The New York Herald anticipates that the existing French government will be overthrown by a revolution and a reign of chaos before any competent party can be found by Prussia with which to treat for peace.

WAR MISCELLANY.

From the New York Herald: It is clear to all that the French army has succumbed only to inevitable necessity. It has fought with the same courage and tenacity that have given it immortal glory on a thousand fields; but the imbecility and apparently the treason of the generals have wasted that valor, and the perfect handling of the German troops, as well as their overwhelming numbers, left no opportunity for the battle to be won, as battles have been won in many wars, by headlong courage and blind chance.

General De Wimpfen, who surrendered Sedan and the army of McMahon, has made an explanation of his connection with the capitulation as follows: He had only arrived in France two days from Algeria, when he was ordered to a command under McMahon. He hastened to join the command to which he had been assigned, and arrived at Sedan, where found that the Marshal was suffering from severe wounds in the hip and back, resulting from the explosion of a shell, the fragments of which had struck him, incapacitating him from the active direction of the movements of the Grand Army. Wimpfen was thus compelled to assume the command of an army which was already beaten. Though ignorant of the position, still he refused to sign the articles of capitulation. The Prussian produced a map which showed the position of the German troops and batteries, and convinced him that the destruction of the French troops was inevitable. Then only was the surrender concluded. Upon which General Wimpfen feelingly declared: "And now my name will go down to history linked with the humiliating capitulation for all time!"

NOTICE.

HOLDERS OF TICKETS to the GIFT CONCERT in aid of the Mercantile Library Association, are hereby notified, that the Concert is postponed until Monday, October 31st, 1870.

Unexpected interferences have operated to make this delay necessary to accomplish the result of freeing the Library from debt, without recourse to other privileges granted by act of the Legislature, passed February 19, 1870.

This is positively the only postponement which will be made. The Concert will take place on the day above named, commencing at nine o'clock, A. M., and to continue until all the gifts have been awarded.

The funds already in bank are considerably more than sufficient to insure the successful completion of the contract with the public.

The sale of tickets will positively close on Friday, the 28th day of October, 1870.

All tickets remaining unsold at that time will be withdrawn from sale and cancelled. They will be advertised by their numbers, on the 29th day of October, 1870, in one or more of the daily papers of this city. Any diminution thus made in the number of tickets to be drawn, will not affect the number or amount of gifts. They will be as heretofore advertised, to wit: 628 gifts amounting in all to $500,000 gold.

Ticket holders residing out of San Francisco will receive duly accredited lists of the awards of Gifts, which will also be published in the leading San Francisco daily papers, on the 1st November, 1870.

Delivery of gifts will commence November 2d, 1870, at the Office, No. 318 California Street, to all parties presenting tickets to which gifts have been awarded. All gifts awarded to non-residents will be held to their order and for their account.

SECURE A HOME!!

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON.

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their Stock.

Application for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made before the books were opened, and a large number of Shares have been taken.

The following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulletin will convey a good idea of the plan and workings of the Association, the location of the land, etc., etc.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since, is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is with one exception, (the Portland Homestead Association,) the pioneer organization of that kind in this city, it may be well enough to state what are its purposes, and the manner to which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands, consequent upon the co-operation of many individuals—shareholders—and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of, but still near, the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad, half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them,) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square (with streets running at right angles) and 80 fractional lots, along the river front. The shares number 800, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association, shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales, after deducting the original price of shares or lots, to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus, if a person wants a particular lot or block, and is willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen, therefore, that everything is co-operative, and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless the property, by some chance, should depreciate far below the first actual cost. Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself, but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood, and at East Portland and vicinity, for the last year or two, it seems hardly possible for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share, payable with the first installment, being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full, with the assessments as above, the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month; so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau, nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation, and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages, it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder, if he chose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent, or he may continue his interest, undivided, with the Association while the organization may exist.—Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads on the outskirts of this city and East Portland, is being thoroughly discussed here among all classes, and one homestead—the "Riverside," just south of East Portland—has already been established. The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is shaped like the letter H, one arm of which, a half mile in length, borders on the river.

From this portion of the homestead, which is elevated but a trifle above the other prong of the H, but is still forty or fifty feet above the river, can be had an extensive view of Portland, East Portland, the shipping, and the Willamette river for several miles. The land is very fertile, and is partly covered with light fir timber. A tract of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks, with an avenue between them, connects the west prong of the H (which has already been described) with that of the east. This last tract of land is in a beautiful little valley, which is now under a high state of cultivation. Through its whole length runs a trout brook, the water of which is clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram the Association proposes to have water conveyed through [illegible] every portion of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.
